The following is an example of acceptable and inappropriate content that can be found on TikTok: In January 2021, TikTok removed a short video of Chinese millennials dancing on the street which had been uploaded by a popular group called "Loud Crew". The group uploaded 14 videos to TikTok, and soon after they were removed twice for infringing on copyright laws. A spokesperson from Shanghai authorities said that they had "strictly" enforced copyright laws on access to music videos and screen shots which are not authorised by the owners. The following video is considered inappropriate for young children because it shows adults taking shots and smoking while sitting on a couple of young boys. The adults involved are the child's parents, and the context in which all this occurs is not clear from the video.",

In March 2021, a U.S. copyright-violation lawsuit revealed that TikTok has paid $1 million since 2021 for unlicensed content, including music and videos from Viacom-owned channels including Paramount Pictures and MTV among others; it has also settled with Universal Music Group over similar allegations. Viacom and UMG were among the first to sue the company for copyright infringement.",

Following the official announcement of TikTok's global release on December 9, 2021, the app became immensely popular due to its widely popular features and user base. From July 5th onwards, the app's userbase increased greatly due to many people seeing it as a way to connect with friends within their country and all across the world through videos and more.",

TikTok is a free download for Android and iOS devices. The app contains advertising which is targeted based on a user's interests, age, gender and location. Some of these ads are geared towards brands while other can be TikTok videos themselves. It also collects personal information from users including email address, ZIP code and phone number in order to let users create an account with the app. This information is given by users voluntarily when signing up for an account or creating a TikTok account through other social media sites such as Facebook and Twitter. TikTok also collects information regarding the user's location, what device they're using, the type of device and the date when their account was created. The app may collect information regarding the ads that the user has engaged with and in-app activity, if applicable. If you are under 13, you cannot create a TikTok account on your own but are able to do so through a family member.",

On December 19, 2021, TikTok introduced a feature called "Profile Verification" in India. The feature was made to allow users to verify their identity on the app by sending their government-issued identification card number to TikTok. The company announced that the feature would show up as an option in the parental control settings of people who had verified their identities. The feature was only available for people aged 18 and over and did not verify names or email addresses. In addition, the company said it would not use the information for any other purpose other than verifying age on the platform. In an interview with NDTV, Jigar Shah, CEO and founder of TikTok said that they had not created profiles in other countries and that verification was only meant to stop people from registering without giving any information. On August 2, 2021, TikTok stopped offering the feature stating "We have received feedback from a majority of our users who do not wish to share their ID card numbers. We will continue to develop other features that can match identities using information such as phone number or email address." The company said it would continue to consider adding the feature in the future with new technology.", It isn't clear if Toutiao can maintain its pace of growth, even with a major acquisition like TikTok under its belt. While Toutiao is top-of-mind when discussing viral news feeds, it remains a relatively niche product at least compared to WeChat and other messaging apps run by Tencent.",

In November 2021, Musical.ly, Inc. announced that they had applied for an IPO with the SEC and would be listed on the New York Stock Exchange under the ticker symbol "LY". The company stated that they hoped to raise around $100 million from their IPO. Following the announcement of its IPO, Tencent announced that it had sold off its stake in Musical.ly and plans to re-invest $750 million into the company. The company also said that it planned to use some of this money to allow users who didn't want to create a Musical.ly account to share their content on TikTok.",

The only remaining question is whether TikTok can continue to grow into a brand that people trust like WeChat in China. Many users of the app have openly voiced their concerns about this, worrying that the app may develop a reputation for being more like Facebook than Instagram (which is more closely related to Twitter). If this turns out to be true, then TikTok may see a dip in share price.",

In another article published on The Guardian, TikTok was criticized for its lack of a privacy policy and transparency about how it uses users' data. "TikTok's chief marketing officer, Ed Wu, told Forbes the app has more than 200m monthly active users and that it is 'very transparent' about how it uses data for targeting advertising. However, he did not respond to questions about whether the app has a privacy policy and users were unable to find one in their apps because there isn't one. When asked about how long the company keeps users' data, Wu said in an emailed statement that it's 'subject to our internal policies and applicable law.'""
